CLASS OF 1905

FIRST CLASS REPORT

JUNE, 1907

EDWARD H. LETCHWORTH, Secretary.

To the Members of the Class of 1905:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I submit to you my first class report. I realize that in many places the information which it contains is meagre, and that it is far from being as inclusive as it should be. The task of getting replies from the various members of the class was, as a whole, very difficult, and in spite of repeated requests, my letter failed to bring responses from 44 of the 258 names which composed the class roster. Some of these men, however, had answered the questions in the first blank sent out before we left the law school, and therefore some information regarding them is given here. Of the 44 from whom no answer was obtained to this last request, about half failed to receive my letters, as they were returned by the post-office unclaimed. This leaves only about 20 or 25 members of the class who even apparently can be charged with negligence or want of interest. Every man who did not answer has had three or four appeals sent him, and where a letter was returned unclaimed an effort was made to obtain a better address. I regret only that the shortness of time remaining, if the report was to be ready for the Class Dinner, made it impossible still further to cut down this list. Any information regarding men who have not answered, and any corrections or suggestions for the next report will be gratefully received.

I wish particularly to acknowledge the numerous letters, notes, and other messages of good cheer which I received from members in the course of this work. It was a great pleasure to hear from so many, and to feel what a strong class spirit prevails among us. Unfortunately the combined demands of daily work and of preparing this report made it impossible for me to acknowledge any of them personally, so I take occasion here to express my appreciation.

One feature of our class organization which I believe is of great pleasure and profit, and which I trust we may always keep alive, is that of the class dinner. The first one since our commencement held in May, 1906, in New York, was full of enthusiasm and good fellowship. The second, to be held in Cambridge, this month, bids fair to equal its predecessor in spirit and to exceed it in attendance. With the cooperation of the class, and especially of the men living in Boston and New York, which are natural centers for us owing to the numbers there within easy reach, we ought to be able to continue this custom as long as there are any of us left to attend. Some day we may even have a reunion dinner on the Pacific Coast!

One of the most interesting tasks in connection with preparing this report has been an analysis of the various answers received. One thing of striking significance is that a great majority of us have returned to our native states, or even birthplaces, to practise our profession. Personally I had always believed that a far greater proportion of the men "struck out for themselves" in new fields, but this does not seem to be the case,—at least with us.

The most interesting feature of this analysis however, to my mind, was that which involved the earnings of the class. As I explained in the letter accompanying the last blank, I hesitated a long time before inserting this question. The results, however, showed that the venture was well received, as 163 men willingly gave the information and only one appeared to take any offense. Almost without exception the answers seem to be made in good faith, and therefore from such a large number I have been able to make, what seems to me, fairly representative figures. The only possible misleading feature is the fact that five or six of the men, often apparently through fortunate connections, are getting much larger salaries or earnings than the rest of the class, and therefore the first average, though it correctly represents the average earning of the class, does not represent the average earning of the average man. I have therefore subtracted six men's earnings from the total, and made a second average which shows more nearly the earnings of the great majority of the class. I have also made a similar computation in the case of the average earning of those practising law. The most startling figures are those showing the difference between the various sections of the country. Men in New York City are earning nearly twice as much as those in Massachusetts, and men on the Pacific Coast, nearly three times as much. I wonder if the disclosure of this difference will start a westward migration!

Other interesting things shown by these figures might be commented upon, but I have already consumed too much space, and the figures speak for themselves. I hope that all the members of the class will read them with as much interest as I have felt in compiling them.

A supplemental report, rendered in my capacity as treasurer, is annexed at the end of this pamphlet, and shows the financial condition of the class treasury.

Before closing, I cannot refrain from acknowledging, for the appreciation of the benedicts and the envy of the bachelors, the great assistance which I have received in all the work of preparing this report, from my wife. If the result is deserving of any credit, she certainly is entitled to a full share. Apropos of this, it is gratifying to see how many of the class have already abandoned the lonely life, and by the time the next report is published, which will probably be in about three years, I trust that our bachelors will be a hopeless minority.

With best wishes for success and happiness,

EDWARD H. LETCHWORTH.

CLASS DIRECTORY.

EXPLANATION: The first address is the residence address, the second the business address. Almost without exception, the men were able to take work sent by members of the class, therefore the answers to this question were not inserted. Where men did not answer the information blank of 1905, they are marked, "Did not answer first blank." When the last information blank was unanswered, they are marked, "Did not answer."
